Art Unit: 1623

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the status of the parent application no. 09/990,554 has not been updated on page 1 of the specification.

Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Freiberg et al (U.S. Patent No. 5,538,961) in view of Hlasta et al (U.S. Patent No. 6,590,083).

Freiberg et al disclose a closely analogous erythromycin derivative (column 2, lines 20-67 and column 3, lines 1-19). The only difference between the claimed compounds and the reference's compounds is at the 13-position i.e. the reference's compounds contain an ethyl group at the 13-position while the claimed compounds contain a propyl group at the 13-position. However, since propyl is a next higher homologue of ethyl and since Hlasta et al teach equivalency of various alkyl groups at the 13-position of an erythromycin derivative, a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the instant invention was made would have been motivated to substitute a propyl group for an ethyl group at the 13-position of the compounds disclosed by Freiberg et al because such a person would have expected the resulting compounds to have similar activity.

Claims 12-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
